

Nikkei has redesigned “Nikkei Indexes” website

Nikkei Inc. has redesigned its official index website “Nikkei Indexes” since the evening of October 21st (JST). The layout is simplified to improve its usability, and the Nikkei 225 based indicators, such as P/E ratio, are added upon requests by users and investors. For more details about the new index website, please refer to the “User’s Guide” at the bottom of the page.

(1) Changes in layout and color

The new website becomes more flat design layout with the colors of “Nikkei Blue” as the corporate color and white.

The screenshot displays the Nikkei Indexes website interface. At the top, the header includes "Nikkei Indexes -Nikkei 225 Official Site-", language options for English, 简体中文, and 日本語, and a "For Subscribers" link. The main content area features a large blue background with the Nikkei 225 index value of 18,554.28, a change of +347.13 (+1.91%), and links for "More Details" and "Valuation Measures". Below this, there are navigation tabs for "Index List", "Archives", "News&Release", and "License", along with a search bar. The "Latest News" section lists several articles, including "Nikkei to redesign 'Nikkei Indexes' website" dated Oct/19/2015. The "Important Notice" section includes "Nikkei to redesign 'Nikkei Indexes' website", "Daiichi Chuo Kisen To Delete from Nikkei 500", and "Changes to the Nikkei Indices". At the bottom, there is a banner for "NIKKEI ASIAN REVIEW" featuring images of a laptop and a smartphone.

Please note that the login pages of the subscription mail and data service, “Premium Data Package” will be combined to the “For Subscribers” link at the upper right corner of the pages.

(2) Content expansion

The new website provides Nikkei 225 based indicators such as P/E, P/B and dividend yield compiled with market cap basis and index weight basis respectively. The website also publishes total trading value and total market cap of the Nikkei 225 components, US Dollar and Euro denominated Nikkei 225 and 6 sector weights etc. These historical data are also available.

The URL of the “Nikkei Indexes” (<http://indexes.nikkei.co.jp/en/>) does not change after the redesign.