

Changes to the Nikkei Asia300 Investable Index constituents

Nikkei Inc. will make the following changes to the Nikkei Asia300 Investable Index (Nikkei Asia300i) corresponding to the delisting of Advanced Semiconductor Engineering, Inc.(ASE) and Siliconware Precision Industries Co., Ltd.(SPIL) from Taiwan Stock Exchange, as a result of the establishment of new holding company.

Date	Addition	Deletion
April 18		Siliconware Precision Industries Co., Ltd. (SPIL)
April 30	ASE Industrial Holding Co., Ltd.	Advanced Semiconductor Engineering, Inc. (ASE)

SPIL will be deleted from the opening on April 18, the start date of trading suspension. ASE will be deleted from the opening on April 30, the delisting date and ASE Industrial Holding, a new holding company which succeeds ASE will be added from the opening on April 30. The market capitalization of ASE Industrial Holding at the opening of April 30 will be identical to that of ASE at the close of April 27 for the index calculation.

The number of constituents of the index as on April 12 is 299. Those changes will bring it down to 298. The constituents will come back to 300 upon the periodic review at the beginning of June each year.